

DEADLOCK NOW BROKEN BY BOARD

The Newport News Applicant Appointed Inspector—Other Superintendents.

FIVE DISTRICTS OF THE STATE

Over Each An Examiner is Placed—Who They Are.

The State Board of Education late last night broke the deadlock in the election of a superintendent of schools for the city of Newport News, but it did so only by finding an equally desirable and probably more important position for Mr. William A. Jenkins, one of the candidates for the city position. Mr. William C. Morton now principal of the Newport News high school and an experienced teacher, well qualified for his profession, was elected superintendent for the city of Newport News, succeeding Mr. John Sheldon Jones, who has a candidate for re-election.

The Board solved the difficulty by providing for Mr. Jenkins as an examiner and inspector of the newly-created second circuit. This is a new office in the public school system of the State, just created last night. There are five of these circuits, each with its examiner and inspector, the five gentlemen constituting the "State Board of Examiners and Inspectors." The board is created under authority of the new school laws of the State, and is designed to secure more efficient supervision of the schools. The examiners are appointed for terms of three years, save the first election. Two of those chosen serve for two years, two for two years and one for three years. Thereafter all serve full terms. The resolution creating the board provides in some detail their duties and powers. They are to make annual reports to the State Board of Education of school conditions in their districts or circuits and each shall present a special report on any matter submitted to him whenever the State Board of Education may so demand.

The Inspectors
Here is the full list of inspectors and examiners named last night:

First Circuit—Mr. E. H. Russell, now of Bristol, Va.

Second Circuit—Mr. William A. Jenkins, of Newport News.

Third Circuit—Mr. J. S. Thomas, of Lynchburg.

Fourth Circuit—Mr. Harris Hart, of Roanoke.

Fifth Circuit—Mr. Charles G. Maphis, of Charlottesville.

The five grand divisions or districts into which the State has been divided are, over each, an examiner named. The first circuit will exercise supervision and make periodic inspection as follows:

First Circuit—The counties of King George, Westmoreland, Northumberland, Richmond, Lancaster, Caroline, King William, King and Queen, Stafford, Middlesex, Gloucester, Mathews, James City, New Kent, York, Charles City, Henrico, Hanover, Chesterfield, Goochland and Powhatan, and the cities of Williamsburg, Manchester and Richmond.

Second Circuit—The counties of Accomack, Elizabeth City, Warwick, Princess Anne, Norfolk, Nansemond, Southampton, Isle of Wight, Surry, Prince George, Sussex, Greensville, Brunswick, Dinwiddie, Cumberland, Amelia, Nottoway, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg and the cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and Petersburg.

Third Circuit—Patrick, Henry, Franklin, Pittsylvania, Halifax, Charlotte, Campbell, Bedford, Appomattox, Buckingham, Prince Edward, Amherst, Nelson, Botetourt, Alleghany, Rockbridge, Augusta, Bath, Highland, Craig, and the cities of Staunton, Buena Vista, Lynchburg and Danville.

Fourth Circuit—The counties of Roanoke, Montgomery, Floyd, Carroll, Grayson, Pulaski, Giles, Bland, Smyth, Washington, Tazewell, Buchanan, Dickenson and Russell, Scott, Wise and Lee, and the cities of Bristol, Radford and Roanoke.

Fifth Circuit—The counties of Spotsylvania, Loudoun, Fluvanna, Albemarle, Orange, Greene, Madison, Rockingham, Shenandoah, Page, Warren, Rappahannock, Culpeper, Fauquier, Stafford, Prince William, Alexandria, Fairfax, Loudoun, Clarke, Frederick, and the cities of Charlottesville, Alexandria, Fredericksburg and Winchester.

CASINO POPULAR.
Hot Weather Sends People to the Cool Playhouse.

The Casino is proving popular as the sweltering season draws on apace. The vaudeville bill, while in places a bit saggy, evidently pleases, for the audiences applaud many of the numbers. The Brownings have been cut out of the bill, and the other features have been considerably quickened by the injection of more life on the part of the performers. The regular matinee to-morrow.

The Frank Wallace Comedy Company comes to the Casino next week with a double bill. The combination has been playing the summer playhouses all the season, and comes here with complete notices from the critics. The first half of the week will see "Whose Baby Is It?" and the second half will witness the presentation of "Turned Up." The usual matinees will be given Monday and Saturday.

PASTOR RESIGNS.
Deacons Ask Mr. Stealey to Remain, But Decision is Final.

Rev. C. F. Stealey, at the prayer meeting Wednesday night, the Brodus Memorial Church read his resignation to the assembled congregation.

Mr. Stealey has received a unanimous call to the pastorate of West Washington Church, D. C., to which field he feels called to go. The resignation he desires to take effect July 1.

The matter was referred to the deacons, who met last night and decided to ask their pastor to remain. It is understood, however, that the decision of Mr. Stealey is final.

Dr. Evans Called Away.
Dr. W. B. Evans leaves the city on an early train to-day to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. Beckwith, in Dorchester, Md. His pulpit at Memorial Church Sunday will be filled by other ministers.

Not Open Summer Garden Yet.
On account of the death of Mrs. Kidd, sister of the manager of the Mahoney-West company, the opening of the summer garden at the club, scheduled for to-night, has been indefinitely postponed. Mrs. Kidd died yesterday morning.

Governor Speaks in Louisa.
The Governor will make two speeches in Louisa to-morrow. He will be at Fluvanna court Monday, and Cumberland Tuesday.

What Can Our Navy Do?

This question will be answered in an article of special interest and value, by an expert, to be printed in the next issue of

The Sunday Times-Dispatch.

The growth of our navy in the last few years has been marked, so great indeed that the bare facts will be a revelation to the average American citizen. Its fighting power has been increased threefold in the last seven years.

This is but one of many interesting features that will appear in the Sunday Times-Dispatch.

WANT SQUARE DEAL, BREWERS DECLARE

Takes Stand Against Intemperance and Disorderly Saloons, and Denounces Assaults.

WILL MAKE FIGHT FOR LAWS

Resolutions Adopted Assert That Use of Beer Promotes Temperance.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—Action taken in this city by representatives of the leading beer and ale brewers of America, declaring against disorderly saloons and other places of similar character and looking to the correction of what the manufacturers claim to be a popular misunderstanding of their attitude upon this matter, has aroused widespread interest here and will command equal attention in any section where the whiskey question is an issue.

According to the brewers, they have been, and are still being, misrepresented by prohibition politicians and anti-saloon papers that have persistently placed them in the light of encouraging or certainly not discountenancing the maintenance of saloons, disorderly or not. A meeting was held in Atlantic City and another has just been held in the Arlington Hotel here. The movement has the backing of the great brewing interests of Adolphus Busch, St. Louis; Gustave Fabel, Milwaukee; L. Kemp, St. Louis; George Ehret, New York; A. Lieber, Indianapolis; Otto Stifel, St. Louis; John Gardiner, Philadelphia, and many others. Mr. Lieber, of Indianapolis; Mr. Gardiner, of Philadelphia; Mr. Stifel, of St. Louis, and Mr. E. B. Clause, of St. Louis, representing the Busch interests, were here.

The position of the brewers, who declare, among other things, that beer promotes temperance, is best told in the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

"1. That the reserve heretofore maintained by not only individual members, but also by our association, with the object in view that our business should in no manner be implicated or be drawn into politics, be continued and our unpartisan position strengthened.

"2. That our heretofore silent and non-partisan attitude has been traduced and misrepresented by base politicians and prohibition fanatics, who have maliciously created a prejudice among the uninformed public to further their own ignominious purposes.

"3. That we denounce such acts as un-patriotic, un-American and detrimental to the material progress and wealth of our country.

"4. That inasmuch as our products are rightly classed by the highest authorities in all other countries as 'Pure Food Products' and the capital invested and labor employed in manufacturing the same represent more than one thousand billion dollars, this vested interest should receive the protection of the law and should not be permitted to be destroyed.

"5. That as our business pays in revenue to the national government, and in licenses and taxes to the several State governments more than any other commercial interest in this land, it is entitled to consideration commensurate with its economical importance, and should at least be given a 'square deal.'

"6. That this country should not depart from its earlier policy of encouraging and subsidizing the brewing of beer and ale, nor should it ignore the fact that the drinking of beer now, as then, promotes temperance.

"7. That it is a fact that our business depends for success on moderation and temperance, and it is therefore our duty to discourage all forms of intemperance, to denounce all places of disorderly character and heartily encourage the enactment of such laws that will effectively destroy them and severely punish those who come best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"8. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"9. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"10. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"11. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"12. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"13. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"14. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"15. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"16. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"17. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"18. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"19. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"20. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"21. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"22. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"23. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"24. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"25. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"26. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"27. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"28. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"29. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

WANT SQUARE DEAL, BREWERS DECLARE

Takes Stand Against Intemperance and Disorderly Saloons, and Denounces Assaults.

WILL MAKE FIGHT FOR LAWS

Resolutions Adopted Assert That Use of Beer Promotes Temperance.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—Action taken in this city by representatives of the leading beer and ale brewers of America, declaring against disorderly saloons and other places of similar character and looking to the correction of what the manufacturers claim to be a popular misunderstanding of their attitude upon this matter, has aroused widespread interest here and will command equal attention in any section where the whiskey question is an issue.

According to the brewers, they have been, and are still being, misrepresented by prohibition politicians and anti-saloon papers that have persistently placed them in the light of encouraging or certainly not discountenancing the maintenance of saloons, disorderly or not. A meeting was held in Atlantic City and another has just been held in the Arlington Hotel here. The movement has the backing of the great brewing interests of Adolphus Busch, St. Louis; Gustave Fabel, Milwaukee; L. Kemp, St. Louis; George Ehret, New York; A. Lieber, Indianapolis; Otto Stifel, St. Louis; John Gardiner, Philadelphia, and many others. Mr. Lieber, of Indianapolis; Mr. Gardiner, of Philadelphia; Mr. Stifel, of St. Louis, and Mr. E. B. Clause, of St. Louis, representing the Busch interests, were here.

The position of the brewers, who declare, among other things, that beer promotes temperance, is best told in the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

"1. That the reserve heretofore maintained by not only individual members, but also by our association, with the object in view that our business should in no manner be implicated or be drawn into politics, be continued and our unpartisan position strengthened.

"2. That our heretofore silent and non-partisan attitude has been traduced and misrepresented by base politicians and prohibition fanatics, who have maliciously created a prejudice among the uninformed public to further their own ignominious purposes.

"3. That we denounce such acts as un-patriotic, un-American and detrimental to the material progress and wealth of our country.

"4. That inasmuch as our products are rightly classed by the highest authorities in all other countries as 'Pure Food Products' and the capital invested and labor employed in manufacturing the same represent more than one thousand billion dollars, this vested interest should receive the protection of the law and should not be permitted to be destroyed.

"5. That as our business pays in revenue to the national government, and in licenses and taxes to the several State governments more than any other commercial interest in this land, it is entitled to consideration commensurate with its economical importance, and should at least be given a 'square deal.'

"6. That this country should not depart from its earlier policy of encouraging and subsidizing the brewing of beer and ale, nor should it ignore the fact that the drinking of beer now, as then, promotes temperance.

"7. That it is a fact that our business depends for success on moderation and temperance, and it is therefore our duty to discourage all forms of intemperance, to denounce all places of disorderly character and heartily encourage the enactment of such laws that will effectively destroy them and severely punish those who come best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"8. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"9. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"10. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"11. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"12. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"13. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"14. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"15. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"16. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"17. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"18. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"19. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"20. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"21. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"22. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"23. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"24. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"25. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"26. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"27. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"28. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"29. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"30. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"31. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"32. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"33. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"34. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

"35. That we use our best endeavors and influence, both individually and as an association, with both national and State legislatures to spread upon our statute books such laws as will permit us to do our business in a legitimate business as respectable as in enacting laws due regard should be given all classes of people who constitute the cosmopolitan citizenry of this great country, as well as due regard for all classes of worshippers, so that the personal liberty of citizens may be preserved without infringing upon or affecting the rights of others."

WEAVER PREPARES TO STRIKE AGAIN

Holds Conference With Attorneys, But Will Not Indicate What He Intends to Do.

POTTER AFTER POLICEMEN

Peremptorily Orders Officers to Resign